Have you ever wondered what exactly you agreed to when you got married or registered as partners? This open discussion is aimed at bicultural couples and families – whether you're planning to take the step, are already married, or are going through a separation. We will discuss your rights and obligations as spouses, the eventualities of divorce, and its potential impact on the right of residency. In addition, we will talk about protection measures and support services in case of domestic violence.

Our open discussion evenings provide a space to share experiences and discuss the challenges and opportunities of living in binational and intercultural single-parent families. Exchange ideas and benefit from useful tips and information shared by our moderators.
